

PSYC 202

PSYC 202 Developmental Psychology II

3 Credits

The study of lifespan development will help you gain insight into your own history and learn more about what your life will be like as you grow through the adult years. This is the second half of a two-semester course in lifespan developmental psychology which examines physical, cognitive, and socio-emotional development of adolescence, and early, middle, and late adulthood. This course includes a discussion of death, dying, and bereavement. The focus is on the normal process of development; however, whenever relevant, atypical development is discussed. Whenever possible, the influence of culture and diversity on development throughout the lifespan is examined.

Prerequisites

PSYC 101 or PSYC 102

Transfer Credits

Explore transfer credit opportunities by visiting the BC Transfer Guide (<http://www.bctransferguide.ca>)

