

WALA 3220

WALA 3220 Delivery of Instruction

2 Credits

The Delivery of Instruction course provides participants with the fundamentals of lesson design and the opportunity to develop relevant lessons and deliver them in a collegial forum. It is a risk free environment where participants are encouraged to expand their instructional horizons and explore techniques that address cognitive, affective and psychomotor domains. Students will work in teams to critique and support lesson development as well as explore coaching techniques to further support professional development in the future. Participants will develop performance standards for their own reflection on their effectiveness in lesson delivery as well as explore means of student feedback to guide their practice.
